Cognitive impairment in Alzheimer's disease is associated with the conversion of Abeta42 to Abeta40 and accumulation of C-terminal-truncated Abeta species. Alzheimer's disease (AD) is characterized by accumulation of amyloid-beta (Abeta) deposits in the brain. Abeta42 is produced more abundantly in the brain than Abeta40. Recent studies show that C-terminal-truncated Abeta species accumulate in the brain and that C-terminal-truncated Abeta42 is a major pathological component. Thus, it is important to elucidate the mechanism of formation of these Abeta species in order to develop drugs for treating AD. In the present study, we investigated the formation of C-terminal-truncated Abeta species in the brain of Tg(APPswe,PSEN1dE9) mice, a mouse model of AD. In contrast to the patterns of cortical Abeta deposition, accumulation of C-terminal-truncated Abeta40 in the cerebral cortex increased with aging, suggesting that Abeta40 is altered in a different manner in AD. In addition, we found that cognitive impairment preceded the accumulation of C-terminal-truncated Abeta species in the cerebral cortex of Tg(APPswe,PSEN1dE9) mice.

Q: Prove: If a and b are complex numbers with positive real part and $a \leq b$, then $|b-a| \geq b-a$. This statement comes from an old exam I took in a complex analysis class. The exercise was to prove $e^{2x} - e^{-2x}$ is an increasing function of x , for which the solution goes as follows: $2x+1 \leq e^{2\frac{x-1}{x}} + 1 \leq 2x$, which implies $\left|e^{2x} - e^{-2x}\right| = e^{2x} + e^{-2x} - 2 \leq 2x$. But I don't know why the fact that a and b have positive real part is important. In short, why is the
